

The way we do business has changed, so shouldn't the way we network change too?

Open In Indiana is focused on connecting local businesses to the communities they serve.

We combine face-to-face networking groups and events with an active online community to help promote our members.

Our Philosophy

We believe networking is about building meaningful partnerships with fellow business leaders.

We Believe Networking Is:

- An opportunity to connect with fellow business owners in your community
- An opportunity to share your expertise through discussion and presentation
- An equal effort of each member to participate in discussion and member advocacy
- A group of professionals who discuss goals and hold each other accountable to them
- An opportunity to give back to the communities we serve
- An opportunity to build partnerships into friendship

Leadership isn't given. It belongs to the one who has a vision.

Ryan Henry

Founder
Henry Marketing Group,
Open In Indiana

When I started my first business in 2010, I was quickly overwhelmed with what it actually meant to build my small business into a successful local brand.

After realizing that most fellow small business owners I'd connected with felt the same way about building their brand, I founded Open In Indiana, a new take on networking and marketing for small business.

Open In Indiana is more than just a collection of face-to-face networking groups. We are a diverse community of leaders, entrepreneurs and small business owners, with the mission of helping our community grow a successful local economy.

Our mission at Open In Indiana is to help local entrepreneurs by providing our members support, learning opportunities and resources to help them build their small business into a successful brand beloved by their community.
